Methods: Description of Coding Scheme

To develop a document review framework, researchers first reviewed content from a sample of three counties and then compared the extracted content. This process established consistency in the review across the researchers. A coding scheme was then developed to rate the utility of the information presented. The following codes were assigned to documents and/or the outcome information contained therein:

Code 2 = Documents with this code are formal studies or evaluations where information presented on outcomes is clear. They report the findings by age group or other important consumer demographics (e.g., race/ethnicity and gender). They provide information on the data source (e.g., self-report, clinician rating, etc.), as well as specific timeframes for pre- and post-measurements (e.g., 12 months pre- and post-enrollment). Sample sizes are provided for the analyses, and there is indication of whether the analyses include duplicated or unduplicated counts of consumers. Finally, the analytic methods used are clear in the presented results, and the reports are accompanied by a narrative explaining and interpreting the findings.

Code 1 = Documents with this code provide some context for the report or outcome data, but key information is inconsistently provided. They sometimes report the findings by age group or other important consumer demographics (e.g., race/ethnicity and gender). They do not always provide information on the data source (e.g., self-report, clinician rating, etc.) or specific timeframes for pre- and post-measurements (e.g., 12 months pre- and post-enrollment). Sample sizes are not always provided for the analyses, and there is sometimes no indication of whether the analyses include duplicated or unduplicated counts of consumers. Finally, the analytic methods are not necessarily clear in the presented results, and the reports are not accompanied by a narrative explaining and interpreting the findings.

Code 0 = Documents with this code do not provide any context or information about the findings. There is little to no reporting of the sample size, data source, measurement timeframes, and analytic methods. The reports are not accompanied by a narrative explaining or interpreting the findings.

Code Profile = Documents with this code are reports or mentions of individual success stories and anecdotal accounts of treatment progress and/or individual consumer outcomes.

Once all content was extracted and coded, researchers categorized the findings into the two tiers of evidence described in the body of the report. All Code 2 documents were included as Tier 1 evidence, whereas Code 1 documents were included as Tier 2 evidence if they were germane to any of the seven domains of consumer outcomes. Documents with Code 0 or Code Profile were not included in the content analysis.

*A note about Annual Updates: The FY09-10 Annual Updates that were reviewed were downloaded from the State DMH website. FY10-11 updates from the State DMH website were reviewed when available. Sometimes Annual Updates were posted on county websites but not available for download from the State DMH website. In those cases, the version of the Annual Update that was posted on the county website was reviewed. FY11-12 Annual Updates were posted on some county websites for public review and comment; the content in those draft versions was also reviewed.
